Making a Home in the Old Eighth Ward - With Biography of Hannah Braxton Jones

Drew Hermeling
Messiah College, ahermeling@messiah.edu

Digital Harrisburg

Follow this and additional works at: https://mosaic.messiah.edu/look

Part of the American Studies Commons, United States History Commons, and the Urban Studies and Planning Commons

Permanent URL: https://mosaic.messiah.edu/look/8

Recommended Citation
https://mosaic.messiah.edu/look/8

Sharpening Intellect | Deepening Christian Faith | Inspiring Action

Messiah College is a Christian college of the liberal and applied arts and sciences. Our mission is to educate men and women toward maturity of intellect, character and Christian faith in preparation for lives of service, leadership and reconciliation in church and society.
MAKING A HOME IN THE OLD EIGHTH WARD

"In this house I was born; here I knew the fond care of a loving father; here I lisped my first prayers at my mother's knees; here in happy childhood I played with brothers and sisters.... Every nook in this weather-battered building is to me like a sacred sanctuary. I hear all these houses are to be destroyed soon, and I have come home to Harrisburg to see once more the home of my infancy ere it disappears forever."

—An anonymous woman and former resident quoted by J. Howard Wert, "Passing of the Old Eighth" column, Harrisburg Patriot, May 26, 1913

Hannah Braxton Jones owned her home in the Ward, a rarity for both women and African Americans of the time